

9th June 2007

TEMPUS Photohorology Workshop

The Hour Glass, in partnership with Canon, Cathay Photo and Revolution, held a photohorology workshop on Saturday 9th June 2007. Fifty participants were treated to a two-hour watch photography course presented by Josh Hu, Revolution's staff photographer who shared invaluable tips on the set-up, lighting, shooting and digital imaging techniques.

For those who are unable to make it to the workshop, a copy of the presentation kit is available at <http://www.thehourglass.com/tempus/pressroom.html>

About TEMPUS – The Temple of Time Photohorology Competition

The nation-wide photohorology competition is open from 15th May till 31st July 2007. Pick from two categories based on the themes of 'The Watch' and 'Conceptualising Time'. The category of 'The Watch' gives you an opportunity to capture the dramatic angles and intricate details of any wristwatch merchandised by The Hour Glass group. Alternatively, tell your own story of time, under the category 'Conceptualising Time'.

Winners will not only have the opportunity to have their photographs published in the world's leading watch publication – Revolution, but will also win SINN and Glycine watches and top of the range Canon cameras.

Works will be on public display at TEMPUS – The Temple of Time at the Raffles City Convention Centre from 5th – 9th September 2007.

Click here to join the contest!

http://www.thehourglass.com/tempus/pho_contest.html